You may want to forward the NYC note to the New York Region. We will be contacting retailers, but any help that can be added from sales to get retailers involved would be helpful.

Best regards,
Bruce

* New York City--Elizabeth Gallagher requests calls to city council members from retailers asking a no vote on the tobacco advertising ban. Apparently, there will be no compromise bill. Retailers will also be urged to attend the next hearing on 10/6 and protest the ad ban.

Milford, Mass. -- Thirty people, mostly restaurant owners, attended the board of health's meeting on 9/29. The board said that no public comment would be accepted, but in the end, allowed the angry restaurant owners about a half hour to plead their case. Due to the outcry against the regulations, the board will redraft. They want to look at some other communities' public place smoking regulations and try to develop a compromise. No new date for consideration was set. Hopkinton, a neighboring community with a smoking ban, is considering reversing it's regulation. That decision will play a big role in Milford's regulation.

Belchertown, Mass. -- The owner of one of the pubs sponsors an annual festival that draws a lot of business into the town. In spite of regulations banning smoking in restaurants and bars before 9 p.m., she plans to post a sign stating "Smoking Allowed, Enter At Your Own Risk." Restaurant and bar owners will be meeting with their attorneys and the board of health on 10/6 to tell the board that they plan to ignore the ban, heed state law and appeal any fines to district court.
